

What's on at The ClementJames Centre? May 2020

Closure due to Coronavirus (Covid-19)

The doors of The ClementJames Centre may be shut but we are still available for support online and over the phone. Groups, appointments, classes, and other activities are continuing throughout this closure period. Find out more below!

This Is Me: Belonging

We are pleased to be able to deliver our annual This Is Me exhibition online this year but we need your submissions! This year, we're exploring what 'belonging' means to each of us, whether it's an object, a time, a place, a memory... We're accepting all forms of art; creative writing, photography, graphic design, painting, junk art, collage, and more! To help the creative process, we've created a pack with some activities that may inspire some ideas. It's available to download below or via the 'News & Stories' segment of our website. Submit your work by taking a photograph and emailing it to wellbeing@clementjames.org. Everyone is welcome to submit - we look forward to seeing your artwork!

New Courses!

Adult Learning classes are back for the summer term via online classrooms. There are currently spaces at various levels in maths and English.

In early May, there will also be some new opportunities for online learning, including:

- Intro to Online Learning
- Excel for Work
- Introduction to Powerpoint

Contact adultlearning@clementjames.org or leave us a voicemail on 020 7221 8810

Regular Groups

Our regular English groups are still running - you can still practice English with The ClementJames Centre during lockdown!

Speaking Group continues via zoom. Practice your English with others from the local community in a relaxed, friendly group - Thursdays 12-1.

Writing Group is also continuing - get writing tasks sent out to you every week with a follow-up call from one of our advisors to talk about how you got on.

Our Reading Group is full for the moment but if you are interested in receiving some support, please get in touch and we will be able to let you know when spaces are available.

For all questions about English groups, please contact lit-num@clementjames.org

Social Media

For daily updates and information, our social media accounts are posting about centre updates, online resources, and feed-good stories throughout lockdown!

IntoUniversity North Kensington

IntoUniversity North Kensington has launched their primary homework club curriculum on the theme of Politics, Philosophy, and Economics, with one student commenting 'yay I can't wait to start this I am so excited'. To contact the Young People's team, email youngpeople@clementjames.org.

Mental Health and Wellbeing Pack

We've created a pack for use at home during the Coronavirus pandemic with guidance about how to stay updated, some tips about managing mental health and self-care techniques as well as information about local and national support services. We encourage you to access this information as and when you need but please do not hesitate to get in touch with us if you have any questions or need any support or guidance at this time.

The pack is available to download here: <http://clementjames.org/wp-content/uploads/2020/05/Corona-Mental-Health-and-Wellbeing-Pack-.pdf>

We are constantly monitoring the situation surrounding Covid-19. Please keep an eye out for further updates by email, on our website and noticeboard, and social media channels.
